ARCHITEKTON

Joseph Salvatore has been with Architekton for the past 20 years and he currently serves as Architekton's CEO overseeing the Company's operations. In addition, he serves as Project Manager on many of Architekton's larger projects and has amassed a portfolio of nearly half a billion dollars worth of construction. Projects that involve multiple levels of client input and require an extraordinary focus on resource management are his areas of expertise. Generally his projects are complex involving significantly higher than normal layers of sub-consultancy. Joe has developed Architekton's management tools that keep projects on schedule, properly staffed and focused on quality. Joe's unique style of management places him as the client's champion during the design and construction processes; a role that clients find invaluable. Most recently, he was Architekton's Director for the City of Surprise City Hall + Public Safety Facility projects.
